Jack,

We have no issues with packaging it with TI BSD license. I have attached the new SW Manifest to this email. I have updated the headers and have uploaded the package here https://gforge01.dal.design.ti.com/gf/project/dsplib4arm/frs/?action=FrsReleaseBrowse&frs_package_id=193
The updated package is in the dsp_benchmark_demo_1_00_00_01.tar.gz file.
Note: Please ignore the other installers in that area as I can`t remove them when the DVSDK team is testing their builds.

Can you please approve as early as possible, as we need to provide this to DVSDK team by Wednesday.

Thanks and Regards,
Rahul

Rahul,

I looked this over and have a few comments.

1. We have moved to a new template for the manifest. I have attached it. Can you use the one attached. Also, you will notice I fixed a few things. The TSPA license should not be referred to as proprietary.

2. I looked over the C files. Some are BSD and some just have the TI copyright. Which files are being released as TI TSPA, just the ones without the BSD header? If so, these files should use the licensing template we have for TI TSPA files (it's attached).

3. I recommend just licensing all the files under TI BSD. I think it's a bit confusing with the mix of files in such a small project. Also, TI TSPA is not compatible with the GPL or LGPL. Do you see a specific need for this release to be TI TSPA?

Thanks,

Jack
